To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, Providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate. He has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, be able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W.
Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as it is practicable) gratified.
Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publishers.
Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

A CARD.

THE subscriber begs leave to say to members of Congress and others, that he has several good rooms which he will let on accommodating terms, either furnished or unfurnished, located on the South side of Pennsylvania avenue, between 9th and 10th streets, and equidistant between the Capitol and the public offices. I have also two of the best cellars in the city, which I will rent in part or the whole, or receive goods on storage.
This is a good opportunity for butchers or market people.

THE WATERMAN'S ARMS. A TALE OF DOVER.

BY EDWARD F. WELD.

It was a dark dreary afternoon in the winter season, and the driving sleet as it struck the casement, together with the rattling of the window sash, the creaking of the sign-board, as it swung on its rusty hinges, the rude howl of the blast without, and its subdued moan in the chimney, lent but a cheerless aspect to the faces of the inmates of the Waterman's Arms. Bustling, babbling Meg, the hostess, was herself no less gloomy, and the pretty maid of the bar, taking her cue from her mistress, neither cast an occasional glance at the mirror, nor allowed a coquetish smile to light her countenance.
The common room of the Waterman's Arms was the rendezvous of the pilots.
Here they met to smoke, drink, transact business, receive their pay, hear their sailing orders, have their jolifications, and hold condolence. Sou'westers, pea-jackets, overhauls, speaking trumpets, portraits of hard faced old sea dogs, paintings of ships on lee-shores, models of life boats, medals, certify bravery skill, and diplomas, from the Court of Admiralty, covered the walls.

Of the guests assembled there were now some dozen, and as you surveyed the group you could but feel assured that they were at home in the Pilot's room. Here were muscular frames and brawny arms, whose very dress coats were storm-jackets, and who aspired to no other—men born, nursed and reared amid danger, who from their calling and daring imbibed courage, and breathed humanity. They were rough and uncouth, but noble of heart, charitable and kind to extravagance.

The party were met for no idle purpose—it was their turn at sea. Husbands and fathers, at home they were men of tender hearts, and as such each had for the while bid adieu to all he held dearest. But here assembled they were boatmen—daring pilots, and in that character, they spoke only of shoals, quicksands, reefs, spare anchors and heavy gales; and no trace of finer or more domestic feeling, or a weaker affection, could you find in their bronzed and weather-beaten faces.

W-h-e-w! came the blast, with a violence that shook the building, and away on the wings of the tempest was borne the gallant ship, which, as the well known sign of the house had rode out a series of gales year after year. The pride and promise of the Waterman's Arms now floated in the muddy water which flooded the streets.

"Do you mind that, my lads—I wish the master's glass had not been out of the ockets the day. For do you know as the gale blows for us to hear and face to-night, the calm of to-morrow will hear the sobs of the widow and fatherless; and may I perish if I would not rather face storms ull I'm beached, than that poor Jeanette and her young-ers should face the overseer of the poor! To be sure I know we have a widow's fund, but what would that be if we were all lost? I am as stout at heart as any of you, and older than most, and again I wish the master's glass was in the becket; for if he war n't at the lookout we should n't launch a boat to-night before hearing a signal gun," said one of the party.

"Poor ballast, that, my good fellow, to put to sea with. Pitch it overboard at once.
I'll be bound Meg has a better," rejoined another.

"Bestir yourself, Alice," spoke the hostess—"bring the old brandy, you shall drink my brandy and my toast—May you forget your own wives to save the husbands of others! Bear that in mind and there will be the fewer widows. Why, you foolish man, see what you've done—Alice, the hussy, with tears in her eyes!"

"Come, come—a tear with you must be rare, my pretty one; we believe it is a false shore yet, and I for one will know sure;" and suiting the action to the word, the speaker would have removed the apron which concealed her face had he not been rudely cast aside by the youngest of the party, who was the master's son.

Alice found vent for her tears now, and her defender encircled her waist, her head had a resting place, and her blushes a cover.

"You audacious!" shrieked Meg, the hostess—"ain't you ashamed—to go to do the likes of that now, afore folks!"

"No! I am not!" sobbed the girl.

"I'll—!" and her mistress might, perhaps, have carried out her unuttered threat if it had required more than one arm of the master's son to have supported Alice—but it was the one arm of affection, the other said as much for muscular strength, as with it he kept the landlady at bay.

"How!—all in a drunken row?" asked the master, who at this moment entered.
A pretty boat's crew surely, and the tide a serving—and my son instead of being foremost in his duty—first in a brawl!"

"You may well say that," was the response of the sailor who had been thrust aside from Alice by the young man.

"I'll see!" said the hostess, again at liberty—"I never was so mortified in my life," and she busied herself in smoothing her dress and adjusting her trails. "I don't wonder you are ashamed, Miss Alice—I don't wonder you can't say a word—but I should wonder if ever you held up your head again—there!"

There was an immediate call for her surprise, for Alice raised her head, and her gaze met her supporter's, who seemed no way anxious to release his hold. Pretty ever, Alice was useful now.

"Oh—but you can't say one word!— Ugh—you—you thing!" exclaimed Meg, as she bounced behind the bar, looking things unutterable.

"Don't try, Alice, nor break your heart, my dear girl, a sobbing. You have not been my wife so long that I am not proud of you. Let them say what they will, I'll speak for you—or do more either," said her protector, bestowing a threatening look upon him whose rudeness had brought about the scene.

"No, no," she entreatingly exclaimed, as she saw the purport of the threat. "He was ever kind—he meant no ill—nor will he be offended."

"Alice, you are right; and if your husband don't forgive me he is no man, though Dover knows no better. Aye, but I knew it," and as he spoke, his extended hand met the friendly grasp of her husband.

"What shall a father say to this?" asked the master—now, like the rest, first apprised of a private marriage.

"Say!" said Meg, as she came forward tenderly embracing the bride. "Say?— why give them your blessing! what else can you say?"

Leather, Leather, Leather.

THE subscriber, THOS. G. FORD, returns his thanks to his friends and the consumers of Leather in general, for the liberal patronage he has received since he opened his Leather and Cur-

Physiology.
Rev. J. G. MORRIS, D. D., Lecturer on Zoology.
WM. ALBAUGH, A. M., Tutor and Teacher in Preparatory Department.
H. R. GEIGER, Teacher of Writing.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is as energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more examplary young men in connexion with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 22d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the Institution. They have increased the number of Professors; and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baughman and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.

view, embraces every subject connected with Commerce, Manufactures and Political Economy, as follows: Commercial Legislation; Commercial History and Geography; Mercantile Biography; Descriptive, Statistical and Historical Accounts, of the various commodities which form the subject of Mercantile transactions; Port Charges; Tariffs; Customs and Excise Regulations; Commercial Statistics of the United States and the different countries of the world, with which we have intercourse, including their Physical Character, Population, Productions, Exports, Imports, Seaports, Monies, Weights, Measures, Finance and Banking Associations, and Enterprises connected with Commerce,

Railroads, Canals, Steamboats, Docks, Post Offices, &c.; Principles of Commerce, Finance and Banking, with Practical and Historical Details and Illustrations; Commercial Law, and Mercantile Law Reports and Decisions of Courts in the United States and Europe, including Insurance, Partnership, Principal and Agent, Bills of Exchange, Sale, Guaranty, Bankruptcy, Shipping and Navigation, &c., and whatever else shall tend to develop the resources of the country and the world, and illustrate the various topics bearing upon Commerce and Commercial Literature.

It has been, and will continue to be, the aim of the Editor and Proprietor of the Merchants' Magazine, to avoid everything of a party, political, or sectional bias or bearing, in the conduct of the work—opening its pages to the free and fair discussion of antagonistic doctrines connected with the great interests of Commerce, Agriculture, Manufactures and the Currency.

Complete sets of the Merchants' Magazine, embracing 12 semi-annual volumes, of about 600 large octavo pages each, bringing it down to June, 1844, inclusive, may be obtained at the Publisher's Office, 142 Fulton street, New York, at the subscription price.

Publishers of newspapers in the United States, by giving this advertisement two or three insertions and remitting Two Dollars to the Proprietor, will be entitled to the Magazine for one year.
